Jay Reins, III Renews CGCS

"Committed to Service Beyond Expectations"

COLFAX, North Carolina --- October 19, 2010 --- Green Resource is pleased to announce that Jesse 'Jay' V. Reins, III has successfully completed his Certified Golf Course Superintendent (CGCS) recertification. Be it known that there are only 1,700 Certified Golf Course Superintendents in the nation.

A Certified Golf Course Superintendent is one that has voluntarily met the requirements set forth by the GCSAA to receive the professional distinction of a CGCS. The requirements to qualify for eligibility into the certification program vary depending on years of education, focus of the education, continuing education credits received, and the number of years as a class "A" Superintendent. Once eligible, the applicant must complete a portfolio of work samples, case studies, and skill statements. This portfolio must be completed and approved by two existing Certified Golf Course Superintendents. In addition to the completed portfolio, a closed book exam must be passed. Finally, the superintendent's current golf facility must be inspected, evaluated, and "passed" by two current Certified Superintendents. Once certified, superintendents must partake in a required amount of education classes and service activities as well as uphold a code of ethics, specific to those of the CGCS distinction.
